Navy Warfare Development Command

Rear Adm. Carlton "Bud" Jewett assumed command of the Navy Warfare Development Command (NWDC) in a ceremony April 20 in Spruance Auditorium at the Naval War College.

Capt. Timothy L. Davison, who has served as the acting commander of NWDC since the retirement of Rear Adm. Roger T. Nolan at the end of September, passed the command to Jewett. Davison plans to retire from the Navy this summer after more than 28 years of active service.

Jewett reported to NWDC from his assignment as Deputy Assistant Chief of Staff for Defense Planning, Supreme Allied Command for Transformation, Mons, Belgium, a position he has held since 2005. A 1976 graduate of the U.S. Naval Academy, Jewett is a naval aviator whose commands have included Medium Attack Weapons and Tactics School, Atlantic; Attack Squadron 34; Carrier Air Wing 17 and Carrier Group One.

In anticipation of NWDC's eventual relocation to Norfolk, Va., directed by the Base Realignment and Closure (BRAC) commission in 2005, Jewett will direct the activities of the command from an office in Norfolk with frequent visits to Newport.

Guest speaker was Adm. John B. Nathman, Commander, U.S. Fleet Forces Command in Norfolk, NWDC's parent command. He stressed the need to continue meeting future war fighting challenges to the fleet.

The Chief of Naval Operations established the Navy Warfare Development Command in 1998. Its mission is to focus and champion Navy warfare innovation and concepts of operations development in a joint environment; to coordinate the Navy's experimentation process; and to synchronize, approve and disseminate doctrine.

Senator outlines future challenges for teen delegates

Sen. Jack Reed, D-R.I., told his teenage audience that their generation will have to deal with two major issues in the years ahead: affordable health care for all Americans, and the growing worldwide environmental and energy problems.

Reed was the last guest speaker for the 36th annual Little Rhody Boys State and Girls State program last week at Perry Hall, Naval Station Newport. About 35 high school juniors from across the state attended the week-long program learning the inner workings of democracy, elected office and public service.

Reed said affordable health care is becoming increasingly difficult for all citizens to attain. Even many middle class Americans go without health insurance.

Health care is crippling business growth in the United State where companies are forced to compete in the global market place, he said. American businesses outsource their workforces to developing nations, such as Taiwan, India and China, because the lower costs of living and lower wages are attractive ways to compete.

Reed said the worldwide challenge is energy use and environmental protection.

"Most of the debate is over about greenhouse gases affecting climate change," he said.

Changes in the seasons, if left unchecked, will produce rising ocean levels, droughts in poorer agricultural nations, and widespread famine over the next 30 years. Only these richest nations will be able to afford fossil fuels, he said.

Navy helps sandbag reservoir

Almost a dozen Sailors from Naval Station Newport helped Newport Public Works to shore up a deteriorating earthen dam surrounding South Easton's Pond reservoir that was damaged in last week's two-day nor'easter.

Chief Builder (SCW) Mike Zangli, the leading CPO for Self Help/Port Operations and Supply at NAVSTA, answered Newport's request for manpower after wind-driven waves pounded the dam early Monday morning. Several pallets of sandbags were provided.

"We supplied 10 people for three days repairing the pond. I would guess and say we placed 12,000 to 15,000 sandbags," he said.

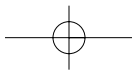

The city's public works director said Tuesday the berm that encloses Easton's Beach along Memorial Boulevard, Eustis Avenue and Ellery Road has been indefinitely closed, and the public should avoid the area.

The city reportedly is concerned about the integrity of the dam, according to press reports.

The moat around the pond and dam are more than 70 years old. Easton's Pond has served as a city drinking water source since 1877.

Volunteers came from across NAVSTA, including Administration Support, Naval Facilities, Self Help and Combined Bachelor Housing.

Attorney general says TV distorts prosecution work

By BOB KREKORIAN

Television police shows, such as Law and Order and Cops that solve crimes in 55 minutes, create challenges for real government prosecutors who must deal for months or years with the emotions and anguish of families victimized by violence.

So says Attorney General Patrick Lynch who spoke on April 18 at the Little Rhody Boys State and Girls State program held last week at Perry Hall. The program is affiliated with the American Legion and American Legion Auxiliary.

Lynch described his experiences working with families who have been victims of violence, rape and murder. "Their expectations are driven by television," he said. "You have to maintain a great passion about your job," he said.

He described the sometimes "tortuous process" of prosecuting a criminal case through a system that includes the grand jury, pre-trial procedures, motions and hearings before a judge, picking a jury, trial, verdict and sentencing. Murder cases, on average, takes roughly two and a half years to prosecute "from the time the body falls to the moment of verdict," he said.

"You try to protect them (families) and bring them through the process," he said. "In cases when families are unhappy with the verdict, I've lost some of their support."

Asked what he considers his proudest achievements as a prosecutor and attorney general, Lynch mentioned The Station nightclub fire case, the state's handling of the murder of Providence Police detective James Allen, and the 42 legislative bills submitted to the R.I. legislature since January 2007 aimed at strengthening the state's criminal justice system.

In 2006, Lynch's office handled 20,000 misdemeanor cases, 7,000 felony cases, and 4,000 juvenile cases. Ninety-six of his 235 staff members are lawyers, he said.

The office also handles consumer complaints and identity theft cases.

Battery powered vehicles real GEMs

By RICHARD ALEXANDER
Navalog editor

Naval Station Newport is mixing some environmentally-friendly green technology with its Navy blue to help pull energy costs out of the red.

Last November, Naval Facilities Engineering Command (NAVFAC) took title to four electric powered sedans and one pickup truck which are available to all tenant commands for rent for approximately $180 per month. The vehicles are referred to as Slow Moving Vehicles (SMVs).

"They have been around for a short time now, and everyone that sees them usually points and laughs," said Gary Ferreira, Base Support Vehicles and Equipment Director for NAVSTA Newport at Building A63.

But once you get used to their looks, they are very practical and economical.

The front wheel drive vehicles, made by the Global Electric Motorcar company, a subsidiary of DaimlerChrysler, are not hybrids. With a fiberglass shell over steel frame, they run completely off six 12-volt electrolyte storage batteries. The vehicles cost only $9,500 each.

The sedan, GEM e4 (four-seater) and the pickup truck,

Gary Ferreira, Base Support Vehicles and Equipment Director for NAVSTA Newport at Building A63, plugs in one of four battery-powered electric sedans, the GEM E4.

GEM eL, are equipped with horns, wipers, seatbelts, heaters and directionals. They can hit top speeds of 25 mph and are for on-base use only. They are however, allowed to cross the Access Road and enter Naval Undersea Warfare Center Division, Newport.

The vehicles get 27 to 42 miles per battery charge, depending on how often the wipers or heaters are used. Recharge from normal household current takes about four hours.

Ferreira said the trucks were used last winter in Portsmouth, N.H., Naval Shipyard and reportedly handled well in snow. During last week's nor'easter they were steady in the wind.

"The Department of the Navy has been issued an Executive Order to reduce its fuel consumption by 10 percent over the next 10 years," Ferreira said.

MIDLANT received 60 vehicles.

The GL truck is an energy-saving alternative to a command's fleet of small pickups, such as the Ford Ranger or Chevrolet S-10, he said. Where a conventional gasoline powered truck may cost $400 a month for rent, the electric truck is only $180. The GL has a 1,000 pound payload, adequate for most uses.

Ferreira said Public Works has a couple more vehicles to issue out, and can get more as demand warrants.

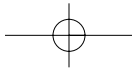

For more information, call Ferreira at 841-2799.

Supply executive selected to attend leadership program

Ms. Marcia L. Alves of Dartmouth, Mass., Deputy Supply Officer, Fleet Industrial Supply Center Norfolk – Newport Site, at Naval Station Newport, was selected to the Naval Supply Systems Command (NAV-SUP) Corporate Management Development Program II (CMDP II) for senior leaders in the logistics field.

CMDP II is part of the NAV-SUP career development program for employees who have demonstrated a high potential for advancement to management/leadership positions. The program is offered to GS-13/14 employees.

Alves

The program is an 18-month competency-based leadership program designed to develop senior level employees into more effective leaders. A central element of CMDP II is successful completion of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Executive Potential Program.

CMDP II candidates remain in their current position and are expected to complete program requirements while on TDY that include a national security seminar, executive interviews, a job shadowing assignment, group project, four weeks of intensive residential leadership training, an advanced management program, and Lean Six Sigma training.

Candidates are expected to meet program requirements on their own time. Upon successful completion in May 2008, candidates will earn 12 graduate degree credits.

Aussies pause to remember losses at Gallipoli, 1915

By CMDR. KENNETH MACAULAY-BLACK
Royal Australian Navy

As the sun rose over Narragansett Bay last Wednesday morning a solemn group of Australian officers, their family members and guests assembled at the flag pole in front of the Naval War College Museum to commemorate the anniversary of the first major military action fought by Australian and New Zealand forces during World War I. The date specifically relates to the Gallipoli landings in 1915.

ANZAC (Australian and New Zealand Army Corps) Day is recognized in Australia and New Zealand as an occasion of national commemoration and religious services are held at dawn across the country.

When war broke out in 1914, Australia had been a federal commonwealth for only 14 years. The new national government was eager to establish its reputation among the nations of the world. In 1915, Australian and New Zealand soldiers formed part of the allied expedition that set out to capture the Gallipoli peninsula to open the way to the Black Sea for the allied navies.

What had been planned as a bold stroke to knock Turkey out of the war quickly became a stalemate, and the campaign dragged on for eight months. At the end of 1915 the allied forces were evacuated after both sides had suffered heavy casualties and endured great hardships.

Over 8,000 Australian soldiers were killed. News of the landing at Gallipoli had a profound impact on Australians at home and April 25 quickly became the day on which Australians remembered the sacrifice of those who had died in war. The Australian and New Zealand troops' actions during the campaign bequeathed an intangible but powerful legacy.

The creation of what became know as an ANZAC legend became an important part of the national identity of both nations. This shaped the ways they viewed both their past and their future.

The siege was dramatized in the motion picture, Gallipoli in 1981, which was nominated for Best Foreign Film in the Golden Globe awards of 1982.

The ceremony, attended by a small congregation of base personnel with families, and officiated by Chaplain (Cmdr.) Louis Rosa consisted of traditional prayers, a wreath laying in honor of all who have fallen, The Australian, New Zealand and United States anthems being played and a moment of silence.

There are four Royal Australian Navy officers based at Naval Station Newport who worked together to organize this event.

The ceremony was followed by a traditional ANZAC Gunfire Battle Breakfast at the Officers' Club. The historical morning meal served in the Gallipoli trenches, of robust beef stew made from canned bullied beef and bread, was substituted by more contemporary (and doubtless tastier) breakfast fare.

Fleet and Family Support Center

Take bumps out of next move

EDITOR'S NOTE: Some of the Fleet and Family Support Center workshops and meetings require registration. Call 841-2283 for information.

Make your next move smooth. Ease the stress and frustration associated with the relocation of military families by attending the next Smooth Move workshop at the Fleet and Family Support Center. The workshop is scheduled for Tuesday, May 8, from 9:30 a.m. to 10:30 a.m.

Anger Management — Anger is a powerful feeling. It can be used destructively, or it can be used for positive change. Come to the Fleet and Family Support Center on May 10, from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. and learn how to manage your anger and change your life for the better.

Spouse Orientation to Military Life — This program will offer information for new spouses on the military lifestyle, benefits and services available to them, and tools to assist them in maintaining a state of preparation for deployment or other military-related separation. This program is offered for all new spouses or those spouses who have never lived near a military installation before and is scheduled for Tuesday, May 15, 9:30 to 10:30 a.m., at the Fleet and Family Support Center.

Self Esteem — this workshop is scheduled for May 17, 2 to 3:30 p.m., at the Fleet and Family Support Center, and will provide participants with an overview of the importance of high self esteem and its impact on all areas of functioning and personal growth.

Navy Family OMBUDSMAN Basic Training — The Navy Family Ombudsman is a critical communication link between the Commanding Officer and family members. This workshop, scheduled for May 21 to 23, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the Fleet and Family Support Center, provides the basic knowledge and tools necessary to be an effective representative of the command and an advocate for family members.

Homebuyers' Workshop — Purchasing a home is a complex task. There are many questions that need to be answered before you take that big step. Come to the Fleet and Family Support Center on Wednesday, May 30, from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m., and learn about your options and how to decipher real estate lingo. You will meet with a representative from the Navy Federal Credit Union to hear first-hand about qualifications for mortgages and other financial options. Home-buying information for all areas of the United States is available at this workshop. Registration is required.

Assertiveness in the Workplace — Come to the "Assertiveness in the Workplace" presentation at the Fleet and Family Support Center on Thursday, May 31, from 11:30 a.m. to 1 p.m. This presentation de-bunks commonly-held myths regarding 'assertiveness.' You will learn skills to help you take better care of yourself whether interacting with peers, supervisors, employees, friends, acquaintances, or strangers.

You also will learn how and when to use these skills. This session will include techniques to help you be more effective and confident in dealing with a variety of individuals.

O'Club to unveil ballroom after extensive renovation

The Officers' Club will hold grand reopening ceremonies for its refurbished and redecorated ballroom on Tuesday, May 1, from 3 to 5 p.m. There will be refreshments, entertainment, door prizes and ribbon cutting ceremony.

Smith's Castle to take visitors back to 1600s

NORTH KINGSTOWN — Smith's Castle, in collaboration with Roger Williams National Memorial, will host "Bridge to the Past" May 5 and 6 from noon to 4 p.m.

Return to the 17th century as re-enactors, soldiers, sailors and privateers, sutlers and traders, take over Smith's Castle's grounds, transforming it to look as it did when Richard Smith built his trading house on the banks of Cocumscussoc in 1637. Visitors will be treated to the sights, smells and sounds of the 17th century along with tours of the Castle.

Admission is $5 for non-members, $1 for children 6 to 12, and free for children under 6. For more information, call 401-294-3521.

The castle is located at 55 Richard Smith Drive, North Kingstown, just off Route 1, a mile north of Wickford Village.

Eight Bell lecture series examines military history

The Naval Historical Center will offer several lectures this spring and summer in the Eight Bell Lecture Series at the Naval War College Museum.

On May 7 at noon, author Marc Wortman will speak on "The Millionaires' Unit: The Aristocratic Flyboys Who Fought the Great War and Invented American Air Power."

Wortman tells a romantic account of how U.S. air power was established in WWI by a privileged, patriotic group of undergraduates known as the Yale Flying Club.

The United States, in the years leading up to WWI, was lagging behind the air power of not only Germany, but the British and French. Preparing themselves for firefights and bombing missions, these wealthy elite Yale students saw it as their responsibility to fight on the front.

The lectures are free and open to the public. Guests without normal access to Naval Station Newport, should make reservations at 841-4052.

LET ME DOWN EASY -- Morale, Welfare and Recreation Department Maintenance and Marina employees lower one of four new Rhodes 19 sailboats into the water this week as the spring/summer boating season gets underway at the Naval Station Newport Sailing Center. NAVSTA Marina ready to set sail

By RICHARD ALEXANDER
Navalog editor

The Morale, Welfare and Recreation (MWR) Department Maintenance crew was busy this week getting its fleet of sail and power boats launched for the spring and summer boating season at the Naval Station Newport Marina and Sailing Center.

The larger 30-foot Shields are usually launched by crane from the helicopter landing pad at Coasters' Harbor Island. But MWR teamed with Naval Facilities Engineering Command employees to launch at Pier 2 this year because the pad is in poor condition. The rented crane put six Shields in the water, and they were towed to the Marina.

In all, MWR Marina berths two 17-foot Boston Whalers; four 18-foot Maritime skiffs; six 30-foot Shields; and 14 Rhodes 19s, four of which are new this year.

The launchings were delayed somewhat by last week's nor'easter and proper tide.

An MWR spokesman said there is no more dockside berthing available, but a few mooring balls are left in the harbor.

The MWR Marina again will offer bi-weekly, basic Learn to Sail courses from May to September. Each course consists of seven sessions with qualified volunteer instructors.

"Ground school" in Building 18 is held Monday, Tuesday and Thursday nights from 7 to 9 p.m., and the second week of on-the-water training is Monday, Tuesday and Thursday afternoons from 5 to 7 p.m., plus Saturday morning, 8 a.m. to noon.

The first course begins May 14. Classes are not held the weeks containing the holidays of Memorial Day or Labor Day and on the week of July 23 because of Coasters' Harbor Navy Yacht Club Racing.

Class fees are as follows: E1 through E6, $45; E7 through E9, $75; officers, $90; and Department of Defense employees, $110.

Those who complete the classes and demonstrate basic sailing skills receive a qualification card from MWR which is accepted at the Marina for Rhodes 19 sailboat rental. Additional sail training is required for the larger sloops.

The MWR Marina also offers weekly powerboat training courses from May to September. Each course consists of two sessions with a qualified volunteer instructor.

Classroom training in Building 18 is held on Wednesday nights from 6 to 8:30 p.m., in-boat training on Saturday mornings from 7:45 to 9 a.m. Class fees are as follows: E1 through E6, $10; E7 and above, $15; and Department of Defense employees, $20.

All military members, including active duty, guard, reserve and retired, and Department of Defense employees may participate.

For more information, call the Marina at 841-3283.

Blue Angels pilot killed at Marine Corps air show

PENSACOLA, Fla. (NNS) — The identity of an F/A-18A Hornet pilot who crashed during an April 21 Navy flight demonstration at Marine Corps Air Station, Beaufort, S.C. has been released.

Blue Angel No. 6 was flown by Lt. Cmdr. Kevin J. Davis, 32, of Pittsfield, Mass. He served as the opposing solo pilot. This was Davis' second year on the team and his first year as a demonstration pilot.

At approximately 4 p.m., Davis was joining the Delta formation for the final maneuver of the aerial demonstration when the mishap occurred. The crash occurred approximately three miles outside the air station.

The other five Blue Angel jets were not involved in the incident and landed safely moments later. The cause of the incident is currently under investigation.

Chicago offers input on maritime strategy

CHICAGO (NNS) — In 1938, Winston Churchill addressed members of the Union League Club of Chicago, warning Americans of the gathering storm that would become World War II.

Leaders of the Sea Services met with civic leaders from throughout the greater Chicago area April 18 to engage them in a conversation about defining our country's maritime strategy.

The process of creating a new maritime strategy is not about updating an existing document, but focusing on a new strategy to address current challenges and to guide the Navy in an entirely new, globally-connected environment that has not existed in the past.

"What is very different about the world today is not globalization, but the degree of integration of economies," said Vice Adm. John G. Morgan Jr., Deputy Chief of Naval Operations for Information, Plans and Strategy. "We need the help of an active American public to formulate our maritime strategy, to help us get it right for our future."

Representatives from the chief of naval operations staff and the Naval War College in Newport, R.I., have been traveling throughout the country in recent months to facilitate the Maritime Strategy Symposium Series. "A Conversation with the Country," is an attempt to define a new maritime strategy for the nation, with a global approach to threats and opportunities around the world.

The symposium has visited Newport, Phoenix, Atlanta, Seattle, San Francisco and New York. The group's next "Conversation with the Country" will be held in Miami.

A cohesive strategy is vital today, as 90 percent of the world's commerce travels by sea, 70 percent of the globe is covered by water and 75 percent of the world's population lives within 200 miles of the Earth's shorelines, according to Morgan.

Royal Australian Navy Cmdr. Ken Macaulay-Black salutes a wreath placed at the war memorial in front of the Naval War College Museum, during ceremonies held at sunrise Wednesday to commemorate ANZAC Day, the anniversary of the first major military action fought by Australian and New Zealand forces during World War I. ANZAC (Australian and New Zealand Army Corps) Day is a national holiday in Australia and New Zealand honoring all fallen servicemembers. Story, Page 7.

Nearly 200 civic and business leaders attended the symposium at the Union League Club of Chicago, providing input and feedback on the nation's current maritime policies and expressing their concerns for future strategy and policy.

First-term Sailors learn to prepare for the future

NORFOLK, Va. (NNS) — Should I stay in or get out? This is one question that will cross the minds of most Sailors during their enlistments. Even though the question is plain and simple, coming up with that life-altering answer may not be.

The Career Options and Navy Skills Evaluation Program (CONSEP) at the Naval Station Norfolk Fleet & Family Support Center, gave junior Sailors some guidance for choosing the right direction during its most recent course offering April 9-12.

There are lots of things to consider when making the decision to reenlist, extend or separate from the military.

This is where CONSEP comes in. The four-day program is designed to help active-duty service members achieve their Navy and, ultimately, civilian career goals.

"The primary goal and purpose of the program is to empower the individual with some good information so they can really come up with a plan," said Conley White, CONSEP program manager.

Reed

“China is a growing economic power, but also a huge polluter, using coal for manufacturing,” he said.

Iraq continues to be a challenge for the United States, said Reed, who has visited the war torn nation nine times.

“We must tell Iraq the clock is ticking, and when American support will be withdrawn. But do they have the capacity to police themselves? That is the question,” Reed said.

Erin Larcom, Middletown High School delegate and daughter of Lt. Col. Charles Larcom, senior Army adviser to the Rhode Island National Guard, and Mrs. Elizabeth Larcom, asked Reed which was the most pressing problem: the war on terrorism or global warming.

Reed said terrorism is the most immediate problem.

“Terrorist cells are still plotting actions around the world, and we must secure our borders,” he said.

Jerod Scherdt of Rogers High School and son of Maj. Lewis Scherdt, Operations Commander of Law Enforcement and Security, NAVSTA Newport Security Department, and Mrs. Janice Scherdt, asked if the U.S. should reinstate the draft. Reed said the military wants a professional force, and very few military leaders want to reinstate the draft.

“Military ranks can be increased through recruiting efforts and bonuses,” he said. “There is no real movement for a draft again.”

Scherdt was selected to move on to Boys Nation which is held in Washington D.C. in July for nine days, his father said.

Brothers offer brass recital

Navy Band Northeast will present a recital featuring Musician 1st Class Charles Birkby on trumpet and his brother, Musician 3rd Class Christopher Birkby, on trombone at Emmanuel Episcopal Church at 42 Dearborn Street, Newport, on Saturday, April 28, at 3 p.m.

The recital will feature pieces by Jeremiah Clarke, Henry Purcell, Gustav Holst, Johann Sebastian Bach, and others.

The Birkby brothers have been assigned together since 2003.

"We are seven years apart, so we didn't have many opportunities to perform together while growing up. The Navy gave us that opportunity," Charles said.

Chris sums it up this way: "It's unusual for siblings to be stationed anywhere together, so when you get that chance, it serves as a real boost to morale. You never know when it will happen again."

Chris is expecting to transfer to the Fleet Forces Europe Band in Naples, Italy in December.

The Birkbys have a younger brother, David, who is also a military musician. He is a French horn musician with the Albany Marine Band, Marine Corps Logistics Base in Albany, Ga.

Free parking is available across from the church. A brief reception will follow. All NBNE concerts are free and open to the public.

Salon Nuvo

Hi, I'm Mitsi Dupre
and I am thrilled to join the team at Salon Nuvo. I started my career as an accessories designer in New York City. While I was living in the city, I met a friend who did hair for Toni&Guy, and I immediately realized my destiny. I moved to Rhode Island 3 years ago, and when Toni&Guy Hairdressing Academy opened, I couldn't get there fast enough.

I love what I do every day, and am passionate about hair, fashion and relating them to suit my clients' needs. It is truly a feeling like no other when you love what you do.

I believe in education to keep up with current trends and new techniques, and I'm constantly challenging myself at the art of hair.
